CHANGTE AGROUND IN MANILA BAY

Details Of Damage Unavailable.

LOCALLY BUILT BOAT

The Australian liner s.s. Changte, en route from Australia to Hong Kong, ran aground in Manila Bay on Friday. The Changte was due to arrive in Hong Kong next Tuesday.

The local agents, Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, Ltd., declined to disclose the nature of the damage, or whether it is expected to re-float the vessel.

The Changte, is a sister ship of the Taiping. She was built in Hong Kong in 1925 by the Hong Kong and Whampoa Dock Company for the A. and O. line.

She is a single screw vessel of 4,324 gross and 2,579 net tonnage, with a speed of 13 1/2 knots and an overall length of 352.5 feet.

The Changte is one of the most popular vessels plying between the East and Australia. Her regular ports of call are Manila, Thursday Island and Australian ports.

According to news received last night the s.s. Changte is still aground in Manila Bay, and is now waiting for a tug to re-float her. It is not thought that she is seriously damaged.

They agreed to confer with General Johnson to-day unless tempers change, and apparently will ask members to reject a settlement.

Washington, Yesterday.

Shanghai, Yesterday.

A British firm, Messrs. Seth, Mancell and McLure, one of the leading chartered accountants in Shanghai, were victims this afternoon of an unusually daring armed robbery.

At about 4.30 p.m., just after the return of two shroffs from collecting four armed Chinese entered the offices and held up everybody at pistol-point, including Mr. McLure himself.

The gunmen shepherded all the staff upstairs to a small room, where they were locked in, and then made off with $12,000 in cash.

WET WEATHER TO CONTINUE

GREAT INCREASE IN WATER SUPPLIES.

ONE COMPENSATION.

The summer wet season has now had Hong Kong in its grip for over a week, heavy showers having fallen daily since Saturday, June 2.

Many sporting events in the Colony have been entirely disorganised, and throughout last week only one complete block of tennis matches was played, the "A" Division League on Tuesday.

Four matches were played in the "C" Division on Friday, but these were played on sodden courts.

In spite of showers yesterday the local bowlers demonstrated their hardy qualities by continuing to send down good woods in spite of the rain, which spoiled their vision and made the greens even more difficult.

The showers are likely to continue according to the weather forecast for to-day.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER FORECAST

Cloudy, with showers and squalls, and fresh south-west winds, was the weather forecast issued by the Royal Observatory last night.

There is, however, compensation in the fact that a great increase in the local water supplies is reported by the Public Works Department.

A total increase of 180 million gallons of water in the local reservoirs has been recorded during (Continued on Page 18.)

ENGLAND COLLAPSE

London, Yesterday.

The Australians added 167 runs for the loss of their remaining five wickets to-day, and England replied to their total of 374 by scoring 128 for the loss of four wickets before the close of play in the first cricket Test at Trent Bridge.

The batting of Chipperfield, who scored 99 in his first Test, provided the feature of the day's play. In partnership with McCabe (65) he added 81 runs for the sixth wicket, and 72 with Grimmett (39) for the eighth wicket.

The weather was sunny when Walters led the England eleven into the field this morning, though the wicket was still damp from the heavy dew, but perfect.

Kenneth Farnes opened up with the breeze, while George Geary was entrusted with the other end against McCabe (60) and Chipperfield (17).

WHITE STAR LINE SUED

By Nantucket Cook's Daughter.

$75,000 DEMANDED

New York, Yesterday. A suit demanding damages of U.S.$75,000 against the White Star Line has been filed by Miss Rose Montello, daughter of the cook killed when the liner "Olympic" rammed and sank the Nantucket lightship, during a dense fog.—Reuter.

The Nantucket tragedy occurred on May 15, when the giant liner was bound for New York. No warning of the disaster was given, and the impact was so great that the lightship, sunk within 30 seconds giving the four men who were down below no chance of escape.

The United States Government is bringing a claim against the "Olympic" for $500,000 in respect of the sinking of the vessel, and even urged for the sale of the liner in order to pay the damages.

Meeting Between Mussolini And Hitler In Venice Considered Certain

London, Yesterday

According to a Berlin message, negotiations have been proceeding for a considerable time for a meeting between the German Chancellor, Herr Adolf Hitler, and the Italian Premier, Signor Benito Mussolini, but the report is practically denied from Rome, where it is declared, authoritatively, that no proposal for such a meeting has been received from Germany.

Router's correspondent in Berlin, however, understands that a definite date and place will soon be fixed.

A telephonic message from Geneva states that M. Louis Barthou, the French Foreign Minister, has been informed by Signor Mussolini that he is expecting Chancellor Hitler at Venice next week, and would M. Barthou care to visit Italy before or after Herr Hitler.

It is gathered that M. Barthou replied evasively.—Reuter.

SHORT STORY.DESIGN for DYING

By B. O. BYASS.

MR. JAMES KIRWAN was surprised at the pace at which his beard was growing. In a few days it would be a long straggling thing which would be tolerably like Van Druten's, and then, past! it and Mr. Kirwan would be gone altogether.

It was quite certain that the village of Openshaw had taken Mr. Kirwan for a somewhat meticulous (because of his pointed beard) down-and-out who could afford no more than a cheap lodging behind the slaughter-house, and whose sole occupation in life was begging. At any rate, its two or three hundred inhabitants had had plenty of opportunity to observe and to weary of his dully round in the vicinity.

Mr. Kirwan was weary too. Mr. Kirwan was so weary that even the thought of his coming complicity in a murder gave him no sleepless nights at all.

On the contrary he slept very well in the knowledge that very soon he was to be the recipient of a handsome sum of money in cash—and a new identity.

Ah! there lay the goal, a new identity. A sum of £500 was necessary, the foundation, as it were, of a new beginning, but the absolute and total disappearance of Mr. Kirwan—as Mr. Kirwan—was the main thing.

And it had all come about so fortuitously. Escaping from a horde of creditors, some not too certain as to which word they were going to use—embezzlement or fraud—Mr. Kirwan had boarded a Green Line bus. The loneliest village through which this bus passed within Mr. Kirwan's means had been Openshaw. The Knight's Arms at Openshaw had produced a certain Mr. Lance Clevecott, who, by means of an uncanny insight, or else an immoderate amount of liquor, had extracted from Mr. Kirwan his exact circumstances.

"Of course," said Clevecott, "you could die. What will you have?" Mr. Kirwan accepted another gin and tonic before replying.

"I've thought of that," he said. "No good. Not got the guts."

"There is dying—and dying." The monotonous thud, thud upon the dart-board in the saloon bar seemed to give more weight to Clevecott's words.

"Supposing," he continued, "everybody thought you were dead. Would that meet the case?"

Thud! Thud! Thud! Clevecott paid for the drinks. "I'm trying to disappear, aren't I?" Mr. Kirwan said in a tone of irritability.

"Good luck," Clevecott sipped his whisky.

Mr. Kirwan grunted and swallowed half the liquid in his glass.

"An uncle of mine at the end of the village has got to die pretty soon," said Clevecott.

"What's that got to do with it?" Clevecott lowered his voice. "The old miser has a—certain amount of cash hoarded up. I am rather in need of it at the moment. There is, say, £250 in it for you."

"I see," said Mr. Kirwan. "I've got to kill someone in order that the hangman shall save me the trouble of killing myself. Not on your life. And a hell of a lot of good £250 would be to me then."

Clevecott sighed. "Really, my friend, there are times when I find my fellow-creatures blatantly un-intelligent. Oh, no. On the contrary. I shall cause the demise of Mr. Van Druten. In fact I shall take a certain amount of pleasure in doing so. But, of course, Mr. Kirwan will die in that unmistakable Tudor cottage at the end of the village."

Mr. Kirwan saw light. Mr. Kirwan saw things other than light. He saw £500 instead of £250.

He finished the rest of his gin and tonic.

"How much cash is there?" "Oh, a thousand 'or so," said Clevecott airily. "Might be more, might be less."

"And the scheme?" "Simple. No risk, no risk whatsoever for you. To the horror of the village of Openshaw a man is the victim of a brutal assault. Face battered until it is almost unrecognisable. Is the man Van Druten? Certainly not. His clothes are the clothes of Mr. Kirwan, the stranger who has lately come to Openshaw and made himself so objectionably notorious on account of his door to door begging. Besides, Van Druten had a straggly beard, not the pointed one of Mr. Kirwan, of which the villagers are so heartily sick. Undoubtedly it is the tramp who is dead, and equally certain is it that Van Druten is the murderer.

"Why?" Mr. Kirwan's face had assumed a dull flush that no amount of gin would have produced unaided.

"You see, my friend, Mr. Kirwan will not appear for a few days. In that time his neat, pointed beard will have taken a quite different shape, faintly, shall we say, similar to Mr. Van Druten's. And June 6, the day I have fixed for the event, being Derby Day, when Openshaw is en fête at night, its inhabitants will be prepared to swear next morning that the figure they saw issue from the Tudor cottage and walk down the main street at 10.30, as the public-houses are closing, was that of Mr. Van Druten, whose evening stroll has become part of the village routine."

"And what happens to me?" "To you? Why, my dear friend, you are driven by me in my motor-car to Tilbury. Docks, you shave off that beard of yours completely, and, well, with two-fifty in your pocket—"

"Five hundred," said Mr. Kirwan. "But—"

"Five hundred," said Mr. Kirwan "two-fifty down and two-fifty when I get into your car."

"Five hundred for such a little risk!" Clevecott puffed slightly.

"Risk! My God! Supposing they found out it was Van Druten, my clothes on him! Supposing you double-crossed me and—and had the cottage watched when I was changing his clothes! Supposing I wanted to be myself again."

"You must trust me, my friend," said Clevecott, "otherwise there is nothing more to say. And you don't want to be Mr. Kirwan again, do you?"

"Death would be better than that," said Mr. Kirwan just above a whisper.

"Then you must die."

"I want five hundred," said Mr. Kirwan fiercely.

"Time, gentlemen, please," said the barman.

"Right," said Clevecott suddenly, "five hundred it shall be: half down and half after the—er—after the event."

"By the way," said Clevecott as they left the Knight's Arms, "I forgot to mention that Van Druten lives entirely alone, and that I am not charging anything for rehearsals or make-up."

And so on Tuesday, June 5, Mr. Kirwan, noting the progress of his beard, and comforted by a bottle of Scotch whisky was not at all discommoded by his forced inactivity of the last few days, and not at all pessimistic as to the outcome of the morrow's affair. Easy money it looked. Another two-fifty just to change a chap's clothes, trim a chap's beard, and himself don an entirely new outfit provided by the management. And, seeing that that chap would be dead . . . No, better not think of that side of it. Mr. Kirwan, helped himself to another liberal portion of Scotch.

It was almost as dark outside as it was inside as Mr. Kirwan pushed open the front door of the Tudor cottage at ten o'clock on the following night.

According to his arrangement with Clevecott, Van Druten should have been dead for about 20 minutes. He had heard no sound at all as he lay in the ditch at the rear of the small kitchen garden. But then Clevecott looked the sort who would do a job like this silently—and thoroughly. Hadn't they rehearsed the whole affair a hundred times? The exact times and places at which he was to call that night; how he was to stand well back in the darkness outside people's front doors, asking for charity, and how finally he was to proclaim loudly that he proposed calling on Mr. Van Druten?

The plan had worked well. He had received the usual answers from most of his clients. And it had pleased him greatly when the butcher's wife had professed such disgust at his reappearance, saying that she "ad 'oped as 'ow not hearin' from 'im for several days 'ed gorn for keeps." Also, when

New Blouses

BLOUSE in black organdi with white angora spots—original and smart. Blouse in white taffeta with deep blue coin spots, and another blouse in crinkled white organdi with frilly bow at the neck and short sleeves. All these new blouses are worn outside the skirt and are fitted at the waist.

BLACK SLEEVES

BLACK sleeves, rather of the semi-full bishop variety, appear with the lighter printed frocks. A dash of black is wonderfully becoming and rather levels up colours. Pretty, too, is a frock in black and white organza, with black silk sleeves and long slash in black.

A PICNIC TEA-BASKET

WICKER tea-basket in a new flat shape with wide loops for comfortable carrying was seen in a London store recently. Packed with unbreakable cups and plates, this is really light and will add much to the pleasure of a picnic.

New Bird Print Designs

Seagulls, Swallows And Ducklings.

NEW SUMMER VOGUE

BIRD patterns are rivaling those of flower and leaf and the geometrical variety.

A navy ground with a white seagull impression is one of the three new bird prints. It competes with black swallows in flight on a white ground of fine cotton rep for an evening gown, and white ducklings waddle, as it were, on a foreground of navy.

This type of ensemble is particularly smart with a half-length coat, navy-blue Chine blouse, scarlet belt and scarlet cire satin top-over muffler tie. Flat silver metal ducks form buttons and belt clip.

Black Belts.

Reverting to seagull impressions, one shows up in white on a sax-blue ground for a dress that has an almost tubular look ending in a pointed kilted hemline which corresponds with the edging of a capelet. It is completed by a black belt and hat.

Simplicity In Fashions

Plain And Neat Keynote Of New Styles.

THE CUT MATTERS MOST

SIMPLICITY is the keynote of the new fashions, as demonstrated at a recent mannequin parade arranged by Copca Fabrics, Limited, for a tour all over Britain.

This feeling for simplicity shows itself in the cut of the dresses, the pattern of the material, and in the colours used. Most of the frocks are straight to the point of severity, and excessive shoulder width and exaggerated sleeves have been ruthlessly cut out.

Good Cut Matters Most

Dresses are plain and neat, with not much trimming to take the eye off workmanship, so that good cut matters more than ever—a distinct blow to the home dressmaker. Lines remain slender on the hips, and fullness, if any, is introduced below it by means of pleats or, occasionally, in afternoon frocks, by a slight flare.

Pleats in frocks are shown singly rather than in groups, and two types are favoured: the inverted pleat at the centre front and the one-sided box-pleat, which gives the idea of a wrap-over skirt. The three-quarter sleeve—not very becoming—is one of the season's new ideas.

Fewer Colours in Prints

Collars, so big that they look like capelets, and slotted through the dress to form a scarf, are another novelty.

The large and trailing florals which are always associated with voiles have been replaced by smaller and more closely spaced prints of old-fashioned flowers.

NEW EVENING MATERIAL

LOVELY new material for evening dresses—ivory silk organdi, with woven check design in gold and red.

MR. HEARD'S PONIES LIKELY TO WIN TO-DAY

Prospective Successes At Macao.

MAFOO'S RACE MAY PROVIDE BIG UPSET

BY YARRAMAN

Mr. "Johnny" Heard is taking out some very good ponies at the Macao to-day, including Powerful King, on which he rode such a grand race in the Juling Stakes last Saturday, and, although in this race he is up against Racing Triumph, Helter Skelter, and King's Parade, I think "Johnny" can be depended upon to do it again.

Potsdam should win the first event on the card, the Novice's race. Although the seven ponies entered include some very excellent talent, Mr. W. H. Choy should be able to pass the post first in front of Sporting Chance (Mr. Tung Man-wa) whom I fancy for a place. Sea View (Mr. Yue Shun-wa) would have a better chance in this race, but for his weight impost of 156 lbs.

The Carp Favoured

On The Carp, Mr. Heard, has an excellent chance of pulling off his first win. This is a game little pony, and, although carrying 162 lbs., should repeat his performance of last Saturday to record his second win in succession. His win in muddy conditions here should increase his chances under similar conditions at Macao.

Panama, (Mr. E. O. Butler) has also to be considered for this race, and is safe for a place.

I hear that it is unlikely that Soldier of Italy will make the journey to Macao, in which event Chesterfield should fill third place.

One very good combination for this race is Sarabande with Mr. Gilbert Harriman up. Gilbert knows this pony well, and his chances are not to be disregarded.

Powerful King's Race

I can only repeat what I have said about Mr. Heard on Powerful King for the third race. Racing Triumph with Mr. E. O. Butler up, carrying 164 lbs., should be a very good second, though with a field like Helter Skelter, King's Parade, Orlando and Sweet Life, it is bound to be a very open race and should prove to be anything but a procession. A very close and exciting finish, in which the jockey with the most experience is likely to be the winner, is the most likely result.

With Mr. S. Y. Liang up, Bay View will probably not fall in the fourth race. Mr. Liang has been successful on him before. He rode him to a win in the Beaufort Handicap on Saturday, carrying 163 lbs. He will be carrying only 152 lbs. to-day. Mr. Liang also rode this pony into a place in the Shing Mun Handicap on May 21, and ran into a dead heat for a third with Ribble in the Colonial Stakes on April 14. Bay View was placed twice at the Annual Meeting with Mr. T. L. Wong up.

The sternest opposition to Bay View is Daylight Eve, with Mr. Paul Botelho up. Daylight Eve, incidentally, was placed at the same two meetings mentioned above at which Bay View was placed, being third in the

CHINESE CLUBS WIN AQUATIC GALA

CHAN FOOK SING CAUSES UPSET

$900 DONATED TO S.P.C.

A record crowd, including many distinguished members of both the European and Chinese communities, watched representatives from nearly all the local swimming Clubs compete in the special charity swimming gala organised by the South China Athletic Association, in aid of the Society for the Protection of Children, at their Pavilion at North Point last night.

Although the swimming races lacked exciting finishes, competition was, nevertheless, extremely keen, owing to the rivalry between the European and Chinese.

Four of the five open events were carried off by Chinese Clubs, the V.R.C. winning the Men's team race as the only honour for the outside swimmers.

Miss Yeung Sau King, China's lady champion and Far Eastern champion, was very much to the fore, securing the open ladies' 100 metres event without serious competition. It was regretted that no opposition was offered by the European swimmers in this race.

The S.C.A.A. Ladies' relay team, who were victorious in the Far Eastern Olympic games at Manila, won the open relay title, but not without a serious challenge from a comparatively weak Y. M. C. A. Ladies' team. The "Y" Ladies' swam an exceedingly fine race to take second place.

The open breast stroke event provided a sensation when Miu Chu Cheuk, China's second string at the Far Eastern Olympic Games, was beaten by his club-mate, Chan Fook Sing (S.C.A.A.), who in a very fine spurt over the last 50 yards, forged ahead to win by little more than a touch.

Among those present were Lady Southern, the Hon. Mr. R. M. Henderson, the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kote-wail, C.M.G., the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Mr. Tang Shu-kin, Mr. M. K. Lo, Mr. A. Hicks, Mr. M. W. Lo, and many others.

E. M. Marques, (V.R.C.) failed to come up to expectations, being placed fourth.

Difficult Diving

The two outside entrants in the open diving competition were seriously handicapped by the unfamiliar surroundings, poor lighting, and an extremely sensitive diving board, but, nevertheless, gave a creditable display. The Chinese, on the other hand, had the "touch" of the board well calculated and made full use of their advantage. E. F. Selk, however, provided a humorous interlude at the completion of the event, being warmly applauded by the spectators.

The obstacle races were very interesting, the swimmers in each case being clothed in bright coloured costumes and wearing large head masks. In another event, young girls paddled large floating horses up the swimming lanes of the course, each "boat" being fitted with electric lights.

The European water polo team proved much too strong for the Chinese, and, without being extended, won the game comfortably by 2 goals to nil. A Campbell (V.R.C.) netting on both occasions.

The first goal was scored from a pass from Shreuder (Y.M.C.A.), who was well covered in the forward position, but Campbell's second goal was the result of a neat backhand shot which caught the Chinese custodian unawares.

Both goals were scored in the first half.

Lady Southern Presents Prizes

The prizes at the conclusion of the racing were presented by Lady Southern, wife of Sir Thomas Southern, K.B.E., the Colonial Secretary.

Mr. M. K. Lo, President of the S.C.A.A., said that much of the responsibility of the organisation and success of the gala was due to the energetic and painstaking work put in by Lady Southern. Sir Thomas Southern was prevented through indisposition from attending although Mr. Lo knew very well that he was keenly interested in the organisation of a charitable swimming gala. The Society for Promoting of Children and the Women's Auxiliary Committee had also contributed a large share towards the success of the function.

Mr. Lo also thanked the many workers who had helped in the arrangements of the gala; those who had sold tickets; and the Companies, the China Emporium, Sincere, The Wing On, and the Sun

BOWLING GREEN WIN ON DAY OF UPSETS

TAIKOO BEATEN AT HOME BUT KOWLOON DOCKS WIN

K.C.C. JUNIORS RECORD FIRST WIN

MANY startling upsets were witnessed in yesterday's Lawn Bowls League matches, all of them more or less being attributable to the heavy showers which fell during play, spoiling the turf, and making matches uncertain to the last head.

The most sensational defeat was that of the Craigengower "A" team, by the Club de Recreio, by 61 shots to 49 at King's Park.

The Senior Champions, the Kowloon Bowling Green Club, recorded a smashing triumph over the Police R.C., at Kowloon, by 80 shots to 45, and the Kowloon Docks R.C. greatly aided by J. McKelvie's rink, secured a narrow win over the Civil Service at home. The Kowloon Cricket Club surprised Taikoo Docks by 54 shots to 42 at Taikoo.

The Civil Service Cricket Club, at Happy Valley, succumbed to the Indian R.C., who are still leading the division with the Police who yesterday staved off the Bowling Green's challenge at the top of the League.

THE CRAIGENGOWER JUNIOR DIVISION, LAST YEAR'S HOLDERS, RINK LOST TO THE CLUB DE RECREIO, BY A VERY NARROW MARGIN OF 65 SHOTS TO 63 AT HAPPY VALLEY, WHILE AT KOWLOON THE HONG KONG ELECTRIC, BEFORE THE KOWLOON CRICKET CLUB, WHO THUS RECORDED THEIR FIRST WIN FOR THE SEASON.

JACK WHITE NOT TOO OLD

TYLDESLEY'S FINE RECORD

Gregory And Gover See
Surrey Through

London, Yesterday.
Jack White, former England Test skipper and holder of the Test record of sending down 65 overs in a single innings, scored 115 not out and secured 5 for 38 to give Somerset victory over Hampshire in the County Cricket Championship yesterday.

Known as "Farmer Jack," White is now in his 44th year, but his slow bowling has lost none of its sting. Gregory's fourth century this season and Gover's fine bowling (6 for 37) caused Derby's downfall at the Oval and placed Surrey fourth in the table.

Ernest Tyldesley's 134 against Gloucester on Friday represented his fifth century of the season.

The following have been his feats in the last five matches: 89 and 100 not out v Essex at Manchester.

81 v Surrey at Manchester
239 v Glamorgan at Cardiff
107 v Australians at Manchester
134—Gloucester at Gloucester

His other century was 114 against Leicestershire at Leicester.

A FIRST-CLASS SENSATION WAS PROVIDED IN THE AMERICAN OPEN GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP YESTERDAY WHEN CRAIG WOOD, AMERICAN RYDER CUP PLAYER, WAS DISQUALIFIED FOR PLAYING THE WRONG BALL. HE LATER FOUND HIS OWN BALL AND REPLAYED WITHOUT TAKING THE TWO-STROKE PENALTY. RETURNING A CARD OF 73+75=148, HE ALSO FAILED TO REPORT THE INCIDENT TO THE GOLF ASSOCIATION.

Jack Goodman, the amateur holder of the national title, failed to qualify, following his card of 76 in the First Round.

Bobby Cruikshank, who tied with Alfred Lacey, the British hope, at the head of the First Round players, has now established a 3 stroke advantage over Gene Sarazen, 1932 holder, while Lacey has dropped to tenth place—seven strokes behind the leader as the result of the Second Round.

BATTING "TRY OUTS"

I often experiment. I'll try anything once on the cricket field. Even though it may contribute to my downfall, I never fail to "try out" the bowler. If he is trying to "lock me up" I try some unorthodox methods. Once a bowler gets your measure it is only a question of time before he gets your wicket.—George Headley.

THE WARRING KINGS OF ARABIA

Picturesque Monarchs Who Rule With Iron Hand War Their Normal Occupation

(By KENNETH WILLIAMS)

ARABIA is in confusion, as it has often before been in confusion. War, indeed, has been called the normal occupation of this strange peninsula, the home of more than one world faith and of more than one world civilisation.

But seldom has there been conflict between two such vital and picturesque monarchs as King Abdul Aziz Ibn Saud and the Imam Yahya of the Yemen. These two Sovereigns, who each has carved out his independence with his own right hand, will leave such an impression in the memory of their respective subjects as will endure for centuries.

Up to the present the Wahabites of Ibn Saud, whose dreaded spearhead is the Ikhwan ("Brethren")—men who have forsaken their all in Central Arabia to pursue and spread the true faith—have swept their way down the Red Sea coast and have even penetrated into the hills of the Yemen. Their advance on horse and camel and by motor-transport has been a grand cavalcade. But they are plain men, men of the barren desert. Will they subdue the mountains? Their further advance depends largely on whether the people of the Yemen, who are incomparable mountain-fighters and possess practically impregnable fortresses, are prepared to stand by their ruler against the invader.

Who is this ruler? For some thirty years the Imam, a man now aged sixty-four years, has governed with iron away this lovely land, which the Romans, though they endured much there, called "Arabia Felix," and which deserves its appellation of the Switzerland of Arabia.

He is both temporal and spiritual leader of his people, who differ from all the other inhabitants of the peninsula in that they belong to the Zaidi sect of Islam, a religion which has possibly more divisions within it than any other religion. He is, in fact, a theocrat who thinks in terms of the Middle Ages. Hitherto, at any rate, the Yemenis have looked up to this distinguished Arab, who, of course, traces his descent to the Prophet Mohammed, as the old Turks looked up to their Sultan-Caliph.

Simple-Living Autocrat
But although the Imam is an absolute autocrat he lives simply. Of middle height, with a mobile mouth, deep black eyes, swarthy complexion, he dresses generally in a neat, home-made kuffan, and a large white turban. His appearance is as far removed as possible from that of the towering King Ibn Saud, who always wears the Arab abn (cloak), the kuffia (kerchief that goes over head and shoulders), and the agal (thong to keep the kerchief in place).

Yet with simplicity has gone suspicion. For the material advancement of his people, the Imam has done little. There are in the Yemen no railways, few hospitals, few schools, and few roads, even. He has not wanted modern ideas; above all, he has dreaded, and avoided, the economic penetration of his potentially rich land by the foreigner. The processes of life are as they were a thousand years ago. Thus there are no gramophones, no cinematographs, though for his own use he has in his capital of Sanaa both electricity and wireless communication.

Anything, indeed, that might aid the Imam's personal powers has been allowed entry into the Yemen. For his chief pride in life, his army, he has imported foreign advisers, chiefly from Turkey and Syria, and he has clothed it well, equipped it well, and fed it well. Reports say that he has fallen into the common Oriental falling of omitting to pay it well, and this may be so, for avarice is not an inconspicuous feature of the Imam's life.

Nevertheless, it is true that all visitors to the Yemen have been impressed with the sight of the Imam's blue-clad gunners and infantrymen.

It is also true that all visitors have been impressed with the one outstanding vice of the Yemen—its addiction to the consumption of the drug called kut. The tender leaves of this plant are chewed until they produce a sleepy effect. The habit is as prevalent in the Yemen as it is afternoon tea or tobacco elsewhere, and the Imam indulges in it as freely as any of his subjects.

Until quite recently—last February—the British in the Aden Protectorate had found the Imam a difficult neighbour: he had maelstrom ideas upon the rightful boundaries of his dominion. But at last he proved accommodating, and signed with Great Britain a treaty that has still to be ratified and published.

Ibn Saud's Greatness
And who is the invader of the Yemen?

Better known, and infinitely more sympathetic, is the character of Ibn Saud. This large-hearted Arab, the "greatest since the Prophet Mohammed," has founded from nothing what is now the most extensive State in the Middle East. His youth was spent in penury and in exile, but never did he renounce his self-imposed mission of regaining the territories conquered by his forefathers more than a century ago and of restoring in Arabia the simple Puritan faith preached by Ibn Abdul Wahab.

He now rules all Arabia, with the exception of certain maritime States on the south and east, and with the exception of the Yemen, which he is now attacking.

But although his rule is as absolute as is that of the Imam Yahya, although his governance is based, as it that of his present rival, on the Koran and on the Sacred Law of Islam—the Sharia—Ibn Saud is no bigot. Far from being afraid of Western civilisation, he welcomes it, in so far as he conceives it to be fitted for his people.

LANE CRAWFORD'S PAY NO DIVIDEND TURNOVER SHRINKAGE REDUCES PROFITS TWO NEW AGENCIES TAKEN

"It is a matter of regret to your Directors that they are unable to recommend payment of a dividend. Under existing conditions trading results are by no means unsatisfactory, but I believe it will be appreciated by shareholders that their interests are ultimately best served by the policy adopted by your Directors," said Sir William Shenton, Chairman of Directors, at the Twelfth Ordinary meeting of shareholders of Messrs. Lane, Crawford, Ltd. at Exchange Building yesterday morning.

Those present were Sir William Shenton (Chairman), Messrs. J. H. Tuggart, E. M. Raymond, T. E. Pearce, and A. B. Stewart (Directors), Mr. A. W. Brown (manager and secretary), and Messrs. S. M. Churn, P. H. Suckling, F. C. Barry, H. S. M. Figueiredo, E. J. Ainslie, B. S. Rogers, D. K. Kharas, O. F. Ribeiro, Jr., D. M. Goodall, K. C. Mark and Sau Kin, (shareholders). The Company's auditors, Messrs. Linstead and Davis, were represented by Mr. H. R. Forth.

Addressing the meeting, the Chairman said: "Before proceeding to report on the affairs of your Company for the past financial year, I wish to refer, with regret, to Mr. J. P. Warren's recent departure from the Colony on account of ill health. Mr. Warren has been a member of this Company's Board since March 1929, and I feel sure you will join me in the hope that he will make a speedy recovery and return again to assist in directing the affairs of the Company."

The profit for the year on Working Account amounts to $92,573.10. Compared with the previous year, this shows a decline of $11,421.22 which is almost entirely attributable to a further shrinkage in turnover. The reiterated explanation of general trade depression and curtailed purchasing power grows monotonous, but it remains none the less applicable.

"On the debit side of the Profit and Loss Account you will note that the usual composite charge for Directors' and Auditors' Fees has been subdivided, and Directors' Fees and emoluments now appear as a separate charge in pursuance of requirements of the Companies Ordinance 1932.

"Expenditure on Repairs and Renewals amounts to $2,495.77, as against $7,683.18 in the previous year. "Ample provision has been made for depreciation, and particulars of how the charge of $51,485.47 has been applied, are fully detailed in the Balance Sheet to which I now direct my observations.

The Balance Sheet
"The Company's fixed Assets stand at a figure of $2,516,346.07. Particulars of how this total is computed are clearly stated in the Balance Sheet, and shareholders can study, without further guidance from me, the direction in which capital expenditure has been incurred during the year. Since, however, the matter of capital expenditure was the subject of remark by a shareholder at our last yearly Meeting, I wish to point out that, as compared with a figure of $55,409.10 for the previous year, additions to fixed assets during the year amounted to the greatly reduced figure of $22,785.04.

"This represents a considerable saving, and has enabled us to divert funds for the purpose of reducing the loan of $2,100,000 secured by a Mortgage on Exchange Building. If you refer for a moment to the Liabilities, you will note that this loan has, during the year under review, been reduced by no less than one lakh, and whilst this may be regarded as eminently satisfactory, I would point out that until such time as our indebtedness under this heading is reduced to a figure more commensurate with the basic principle as applicable to advances made against property, it is essential that your Company should concentrate on relieving itself of this obligation to its Bankers.

"To revert to the Assets: Stock at the figure of $720,882.64 is considerably less than at the close of the previous year, and I am pleased to state that, by dint of careful buying and energetic selling, there is very little redundant stock on our hands.

"The figure for Sundry Debtors — $189,948.98 — is slightly higher than for the previous year.

Director's Recommendations
"The Trustees' Provident Fund Current Account shows a balance of $95,981.78, which represents exactly the amount appearing on the Liabilities side of the Balance Sheet as owing to the Trustees. I wish to explain that, hitherto, part of the monies belonging to this Fund has been retained by the Company on security of a Mortgage granted to the Trustees on our Burrows Street property. The position then was that the Trustees held a certain proportion of the Provident Fund in the form of cash on current account, and the balance in the form of a loan to the Company on the security of a Mortgage.

"Your Directors decided that, in the interests of all parties concerned, it would be more satisfactory if the Provident Fund were entirely dissociated from the Company's business. This has accordingly been carried out, and in future items relating to the Provident Fund will not appear in the Company's financial year, the property mortgaged to the Trustees had not been reassigned to the Company.

"Before leaving this subject, I would point out that the payment by the Company to the Trustees of $26,441.20 accounts for the Company's overdraft appearing at the comparatively higher figure of $74,342.89.

"Turning to the Liabilities, I find that I have already dealt with the main features in cross reference.

"I wish to remark on the item Sundry Creditors, which, at the figure of $172,141.49, shows a welcome contraction of $42,614.05 as compared with the previous year.

Provident Fund Account
"It only remains to examine the balance of Profit and Loss account, and reiterate the recommendation contained in the Directors' Report (Continued on Page 10.)

ARMY OFFICER NOT GUILTY.

Suggestion Of Grievance Against Defendant

Summoned at the instance of Mr. F. T. Nicholson, Captain Walsh, R.A.S.C., who appeared before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy last Friday for overlooking a stationary tram when driving his car on the near side in Whitfield, North Point, on May 22, was dismissed yesterday morning.

Captain Walsh denied the summons against him, saying that the tram was not stationary at the time when he passed it. A witness corroborated his statement.

Mr. Hamilton, in dismissing the summons, said that Mr. Nicholson must have had a grievance against defendant at the time when the summons was served, and said that owing to evidence taken he could not find defendant guilty.

The Warring Kings Of Arabia.

Such innovations, for instance, as motor-cars, aeroplanes, wireless stations, he has instituted in his huge domain of the Hejaz-Nejd. Without them, indeed, administration would not be easy, for it is only Ibn Saud's mighty personality that keeps the Bedouin back from their immemorial pastime of raiding and of robbing the pilgrims to Mecca.

This magnificent Arab straddles the centuries. One foot is in the early decades of Islamic Arabia, where he rules like a Caliph. The other is in the twentieth century, during which he negotiates with, and entertains, Western diplomats.

His real purpose towards the Yemen has not yet been disclosed.

Historical Films.

IT must not doubt be taken for granted that "nobody," from the box office point of view, reads history now. From the schoolboy angle history is a subject that has no bearing on the great problem of earning a living, and it must be admitted that the ordinary textbook is produced by "crammers" who know only too well what sort of question can be asked and answered and marked. There is no room in a short survey of a long period for the personal touch that creates a sympathetic appreciation of famous figures as men and women of flesh and blood, arousing the curiosity to get to know more about them until we feel as if we had stood in their shoes and had the same adventures. That is what a great dramatist or novelist with his characters on the stage or in fiction, and incidentally leads us on to learn something new about life present or past without realising that in so far as he is able to reproduce real life to our imagination we are actually drinking in history without tears.

It was quite natural that when the cinema was invented the enthusiastic highbrow congratulated himself on having at last found a means of putting before the public some of the storied heroes that aroused his own enthusiasm in a medium that would evade the indolence of the general reader. There was nothing to prepare him for the shock of being met with the blank wall of refusal hidden in the "maxim" "a hundred per cent. entertainment." After all the producer was the very type of the general reader who could hardly believe that anyone would be entertained by any events that had happened much too long ago to be reported in yesterday's newspaper.

Recently there has been some slight reaction. The obvious source of the newspaper paragraph, particularly the police reports, has been pumped, if not dry, at least to a very low level; and there could be no denying that anyone who had been written about in books for a hundred or two hundred years had enjoyed quite a lot of free publicity, of which advantage could be taken as a business proposition. The ingenious Mr. Korda well deserved the golden harvest he has reaped from this fruitful idea.

Holding fast to our maxim of one hundred per cent. entertainment, and not wandering beyond the films we have seen in Hong Kong, there are still some questions to be asked. How far ought the producer to aim at representing his subject as he or she really was? Would it not interest us more if we could feel sure that he and his actors were at least aiming at giving us a true representation of the essential man or woman? And should not at least some attempt be made to show us some of the scenes that have made the character famous? Mr. Laughton for instance looks the part of the middle-aged Henry to the life. But Henry was a belated child of the Renaissance, which only reached England a full century after its heyday in Italy, and his manners were far in advance of his morals. The boorish gluttony at the table was immensely overdone. Moreover, the only two wives that really had any effect either on his character or on history were the first two, Catherine of Aragon and Ann Boleyn. There is a lack of moral courage in avoiding the earlier years when Henry was at the crossroads of life to exploit the years of wilfulness and indulgence.

There is a tendency for the actresses to sentimentalise the youthful innocence or the pathetic age of women who were known to the outside world for quite other sides of their character that are not suggested. Elizabeth Bergner for instance gives a fine piece of acting as Catherine the Great, which is coming to Hong Kong very soon; but the Catherine she shows has none of the extraordinary persistence and ambition that we know the original showed in very early girlhood. Queen Christina as shown to us by Greta Garbo was certainly a woman who attracts our sympathy; but was she the woman that made history? Queen Elizabeth was much more like a respectable suburbanite than the woman who reviewed her troops at Tilbury?

We must not be ungracious; but are we really learning anything from pictures if the pictures are misleading?

THIS TEST MATCH
BUSINESSSUGGESTIONS TO AVOID DISCORD

(By Bryan Lewis.)
(the local wireless humorist)

IN every part of the world, where a couple of Englishmen meet together the one subject of conversation is the present series of Test Matches against Australia.

It is the commonest knowledge of every one, that the last serious led to the most acrimonious discussions. It was commonly feared that the Empire itself would be rent asunder. Even the Cabinet considered the question, and the great game, of which we are so proud, suddenly became a thing of terror, menacing the peace of the Empire, and the cricket ball, that used to be merely a plaything, was revealed as a thing of horror.

Having given the matter my fullest consideration, and in the hope that my suggestion will meet with the approval of the M.C.C., and all true lovers of the game, and upholders of the Empire, I have come to the conclusion that the only solution is to play Cricket without a ball at all—at least in Test Matches.

Sports Disarmament
I am fully aware that this is revolutionary, but it has at least somewhat "unorthodox," and even the virtue of being able to stop any, and all complaints, about the nature of the bowling, and I can thereby carry suitably and impressively into Sports, the principle of Disarmament, which is advocated so strongly to the nations.

I am quite prepared to admit that a reform such as this, might be too drastic to be accomplished all at once. The world may not yet be ready for it, and we may have to wait for a less barbaric and ruthless age before it obtains recognition as the only civilised and modern practice. Progress is always slow, and we reformers have to be content with small beginnings.

Softer Ball
I therefore, do not insist on the total abolition of the ball at once, though that is my ultimate aim. I am content, for the moment, that in Test or "ket," the ball should be of such a nature that it will not give rise to cries of grief and reproach, should, by any chance, the batsman be touched by it.

This I am convinced, would be a better solution than insisting, even under the death penalty, that bowling should be underhand, and never to exceed the speed of four miles an hour.

The question that naturally arises next, is, the nature of the ball to be adopted. Here again I have given the matter much careful thought. The golf ball, being open to the same objections as the cricket ball is, automatically barred, as the batsman might conceivably find even greater difficulty in dodging it than the larger projectile.

Those of us who have received our partner's serve at Tennis, in the nape of the neck, realise that a tennis ball can also be a weapon of offense, so that too must be ruled out. Footballs come under the same category, besides which, they are capable of bouncing completely over one's head.

Lady's Powder Puff
We must therefore find some material, which will obviate these dangers and difficulties. I have decided therefore, that it should be of the same material and texture as a lady's powder puff, so that if by some unfortunate chance, it be wafted against a batsman, no damage would follow and international relations would be avoided.

My Reforms, however, do not end with a revised cricket ball. There are some expressions, still used in the cricket field which should be abolished in Test cricket. What is more ruthless and vindictive, to say nothing of its plainly inhospitable implications, than the savage cry "Rrrzzaa?" which when translated into English means "How's that?" Nothing could be more cruelly indicative to a friendly visitor that his presence is no longer wanted. Altogether apart from that point of view, every one knows how dangerous it is, suddenly to rouse a sleep-walker from his slumbers; and Umpires, are in many cases, quite useful members of society, and worth preserving. We suggest therefore, that instead of the brutal cry, printed above, some gracious formula should be devised on the following lines;

Address To Umpire
"We hope you will pardon us, Umpire, but may we suggest, without being unduly insistent, that an occasion has arisen, in this most enjoyable and friendly game, in which a pronouncement from a man of your acknowledged authority on the rules governing this noble pastime would be definitely advantageous."

Then, if the Umpire thought that the ball had touched (I refrain from using the term struck) the batsman on the legs, or he had been caught, he would not utter the blunt and uncouth word "Out;" but soothing words somewhat as follows:

"I fear, Mr. So—and So, we have detained you rather long. And as you know, there are, good, glad-hearted friends of yours, and I hope, of ours, waiting in the pavilion, for their happy turn to join us in our merry gambols. So, perhaps, oh, yes, goodbye, and I do so hope we meet again."

Higher Level In Game
If this simple, courteous change were made there would be no more hit or chance of irritation, and the whole game would be raised to a higher level.

I have one more suggestion to make, and that refers to the choice of captains. The time has now come, when it is desirable to avoid men, who have that old, primitive, combative instinct, known as the "Will To Win." We, surely, have reached the stage in human progress, that stage of altruism, brotherly love, and understanding of our common humanity, to say nothing of our partnership in the Empire, when both sides should take the field anxious to lose in order that the joy, yet pain of victory, may be willingly surrendered for the pain yet pleasure of defeat.

I would add in conclusion, that I am wearing my bullet-proof waistcoat.

BANKRUPTCY CASE
WITHDRAWN.Assets 15 Per Cent. In Excess Of Liability.

A petition for the bankruptcy of the Hing Nam Construction Company and Lau Wah, Choy Wing-chau, partners, was withdrawn on the application of Mr. H. L. Denny, appearing for Lam Shing, petitioning creditor, before His Honour the Chief Justice, Mr. A. D. A. McGregor, at the Supreme Court yesterday morning.

Mr. Denny stated that it had been disclosed that the assets of the firm were in excess of 15 per cent. of the liabilities, and that on the recommendation of Mr. J. J. Hayden, the Official Receiver, he wished to apply for withdrawal.

HOW COULD I?

You asked me to remember
The love that quickened our pulses
With its soft ecstasies; the sweet words

You taught me; the faint tremor in Your voice as you whispered low and

Your lips caressed my name.

And I remember,
But to you the years were long
And in their flight the fire of your Love burned low, flickered for a Moment, and died. I sit alone with
A treasure chest of memory—
Memories of blessed hours within
Which we have lived the whole of
A lifetime.

And now, you ask me to forget—
But how could I when I have learned

To remember!
How could I when the night is cruel with

Its silence and its mute tale of love
That stirred our hearts a while
With tenderness?

The River Thames at Abingdon. Abingdon is a quaint old town which grew up round a powerful Benedictine abbey founded in the 7th century. Only the Gateway, the Prior's house and Guest house remain of the Abbey to-day. It has two old churches, St. Helen's, a fine Perpendicular church with a splendid spire, double aisle, and Jacobean pulpit, and St. Nicholas church, originally Norman but remodelled in Perpendicular Style. The bridge over the Thames at Abingdon is very picturesque with six pointed arches. It was erected in 1116 by Henry V.

There is ONLY ONE
Ovaltine

THERE are definite reasons why delicious "Ovaltine" is the supreme tonic food beverage.

The formula and scientific processes employed in the preparation of "Ovaltine" cannot be copied. It is made from the highest qualities of malt extract, fresh creamy milk and new-laid eggs. There is no indigestible starch in "Ovaltine," nor does it contain large percentages of cheaper ingredients—such as sugar and cocoa—to reduce the price.

Every drop of "Ovaltine" is pure, concentrated, health-giving nourishment. Its ingredients are so perfectly balanced to the needs of the body and are so easily assimilated that its regular use strengthens instead of overtaxing the digestive organs.

Termites.

Last Sunday, as we expected, owing to the rain, was a day favourable to the swarming of termites. From a bungalow at Shek O we watched winged male and female white ants emerging from holes in the ground and flying upwards in countless thousands. It was raining hard and the rain deterred most birds from leaving the shelter of the trees but the kites were interested. It was curious to watch three kites, the second or third largest of our native birds, swooping and wheeling in the air in vain endeavours, for the most part, to catch the termites in their talons. On the ground toads and frogs were ready to eat the termites as they descended; we caught two toads and offered them white ants but they refused to perform for our benefit. Other enemies of white ants not mentioned last week are dragonflies and spiders.

Hawk-moth Caterpillars.

A few days ago in the early morning we noticed that a tomato plant had been completely denuded of leaves apparently in a single night. Large droppings on the ground beneath betrayed the presence of one or more caterpillars. Inspection of neighbouring plants revealed one very large hawk-moth caterpillar and later another of the same species. This caterpillar grows to a length of 5 inches and is the larva of the Death's Head Hawk Moth. It is green with diagonal yellowish stripes and the recurved horn at its tail-end is covered with small tubercles. This species feeds in England, where it is rare, on the leaves of the potato; in the tropics, on various other members of the Solanaceae including the Egg plant or Brinjal, Tomato, Tobacco and Datura. The full grown larva buries itself in the soil where it pupates, the moth emerges after 18 days. The moth is the best known of the hawk moths on account of the markings on the thorax which resemble in a remarkable manner the 'face' of a skull. The moth is the only one, in our experience, which can squeak, the caterpillar makes curious clicking noises as it gnashes its jaws seemingly with annoyance at being held in the fingers. Caterpillars of other species of Hawk moth may be found on Arum, Ipomoea and Privet.

The caterpillars of the Atlas moth, the largest local species with a span of nine inches, also grows to a length of five inches or more. The following plants are food plants of this species, the Ivy tree Heptapleurum octophyllum, Hibiscus, Mango, Guava, orange, camphor and occasionally the Tung oil tree Aleurites sp. The larvae are pale bluish green with fleshy spines and are covered with a whitish waxy substance. The cocoon is very large, constructed of brown silk, usually spun between leaves, and is suspended by strong silk from a twig.

RECEIVING ORDER MADE.All Firm's Partners Abscond.*$60,000 LIABILITIES

A receiving order was made against the Kung Chung Loong Firm, on the petition of Chung Sze-chu, represented by Mr. F. G. Nigel, before His Honour the Chief Justice, Mr. A. D. A. McGregor, at the Supreme Court yesterday morning.

Yong Hong-long, manager of the petitioning firm stated that when he received a notice of the suspension of payment by the debtor firm, they owed his firm $10,334.53. As the result of the notice sent by the Kung Chung Loong firm, he had sent a foki to their premises, and this foki had been told that the managing partners had all absconded.

There had been no accurate method of ascertaining the financial position of the firm, but a paper was found by the foki which showed debts to the extent of $60,000, and assets to the extent of $8,000.

Witness stated that he had conferred with the other creditors who had agreed on the course of action he had taken.

Mr. Nigel, stating that the assets appeared to be much less than 15 per cent. of the liabilities, asked that the receiving order should be made.

Mrs. M. Smith led Mrs. R. Higgs by 153 points to 143 points in the South Wales Borderers' Ladies' Club Whist Drive and tombola at the Murray Barracks last night. Securing 123 points, Mrs. M. Taylor won third prize.

In the men's section, Mr. E. Jones secured first prize with 148 points, while Mr. G. Harvey returned 142 and Mr. E. Williams 139 points.

HELENA MAY SECRETARY MARRIEDSociety Wedding At Union Church.*SIR THOMAS SOUTHERN PAYS WARM TRIBUTES

A most prominent society wedding was solemnised at the Union Church, Kennedy Road, at noon yesterday when Miss Dorothy Wilson Westland, former Secretary and Treasurer of the Helena May Institute, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Clarence Lamb Gasper, of the Chinese Maritime Customs.

The bride is the only daughter of the late Mr. C. Westland and Mrs. Westland of Kandy, Ceylon, while the bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. A. Gasper and Mrs. Gasper of London.

The Rev. E. G. Powell officiated. The bride, who looked very charming in a beautiful gown of beige lace with hat and veil to match, carrying a bouquet of gladioli, was given away by Sir Thomas Southern, K.B.E., the Colonial Secretary.

Miss Marie Paterson and Miss Catherine Markham, wearing frocks of yellow georgette and carrying bouquets of flame gladioli, were the bridesmaids.

Mrs. Wolfe, wife of the Hon. Mr. E. D. F. Wolfe, C.M.G., Inspector General of Police, was Matron of Honour. Mrs. Wolfe wore a dress of beige and brown with a brown hat.

Bridal Gifts

The bride's gift to the groom was a silver toilet set, while the bridegroom presented the bride with a beautiful wristlet watch. The honeymoon is being spent at Cheung Chau and the bride's going-away dress was a gown of white pique.

Among those present at the wedding were Sir Thomas Southern, K.B.E., and Lady Southern; Mrs. O. C. Borrett, wife of H. E. Major General O. C. Borrett, C.B., C.M.G., C.B.E., D.S.O.; The Hon. Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe, C.M.G., Inspector General of Police; Mrs. Wolfe and Miss Wolfe; the Hon. Dr. A. R. Wellington and Mrs. Wellington; Mrs. R. E. Lindell; Mrs. J. D. Lloyd; Mrs. C. E. L. Griest; Mrs. E. Cock; Mr. and Mrs. D. Trill; Mrs. J. Durran; Mrs. E. G. Powell; Mrs. R. B. Jackson; Mrs. E. Davidson; Mrs. C. G. S. Thomson; Mrs. G. D. Black; Mrs. A. M. Bowes-Smith; Mrs. J. A. Fraser; Mrs. Briggs; Mrs. Meyer; Mrs. Robertson and Mr. E. N. Ensor, Commissioner of Chinese Customs.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at St. John's Place, Garden Road.

Sir Thomas's Toast
In proposing the health of the bride and bridegroom, Sir Thomas Southern said that on an occasion of this kind, as so very often happened in the Colonies, weddings have had to take place without the presence of the nearest or closest relative of the bride or bridegroom.

PRETTY CHINESE WEDDING.Kwok — Lee At Gloucester.

A pretty Chinese wedding took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the Gloucester Restaurant, when Miss R. Lee, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Y. B. Lee of Hong Kong, became the bride of Mr. C. S. Kwok, of the Hong Kong Chun-Shing Commercial Academy and eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Kwok.

In the absence of Mr. Chan Lim-pak, J.P., who was unable to be present owing to pressure of business, Mr. Kwok Chan, his son-in-law, officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her father, Mr. Y. B. Lee, was dressed in a European bridal dress of white satin, with a lace-muslin veil clasped with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of lilies and maiden-hair fern.

The only bridesmaid, Miss May Tsui, wore a Chinese costume of apple-green georgette, and carried a bouquet of lilies and maiden-hair fern.

After the ceremony, which was attended by about 200 guests, a

Regulations.

THERE is a good deal of truth in the complaints made from time to time by people who find themselves mulcted in a fine (usually small) for transgressing some Regulation that they had never heard of before; but it is a mistake to suppose that Hong Kong is in any way specially subject to this inconvenience. The recent campaign (if it is not disrespectful to use the word) by the Lord Chief Justice of England quoted many instances, but the difficulty would be to find any place that is exempt. The principal causes are that legislation takes so long to put through that all Governments have tried to ease the work by conferring power to make bye-laws, on the Departments, which have plenty of time to draft any number. The greater speed of traffic is responsible for many, and the constant attempt to improve public health and industrial security for more. Quite probably in most countries the secondary legislation is greater in bulk than what are called "laws" and all that saves us from being driven to desperation is that as a rule the police do not know much more about them than the public, and Departments generally are content to quote them for our information. On the whole they make for liberty by restricting the power of the occasional official who aspires to imitate Haroun Al Raschid by enforcing a benevolent autocracy. Martial Law provides very good tests of how the non-regulated system works. It is in many ways a short cut to substantial justice, but the fury that can be evoked by a well-meaning busybody has to be seen to be believed. People are usually very glad to get back to Regulations.

Rasputin.

THE recent libel case in which damages were obtained in a substantial amount by a former lady of the Russian Court who claimed that she was recognisably introduced as one of the characters in the film based on Rasputin's career, reminds one once again of how producers frequently miss an element of drama that lies ready to their hand. The weak point of the film was that it failed to make Rasputin a credible human being. His career is not to be explained on the lines that he was a drunken waster who practiced hypocrisy from the motive of ambition. Not so does any man develop phenomenal will power which bonds circumstances to his wishes and crows powerful enemies. Any character must be a consistent conception and comply with known laws of psychology. He was a man with the ordinary habits of the moujik who had the natural gift of a healer, not so rare as one travels East as it is in the West and who belonged to a heretical sect that has a long history. The principal tenet of that type of man is not merely a divorce between morality and religion, but the topsy-turvy idea that it is a man's duty to sin in order "that grace may abound." His object is to obtain a genuine ecstasy of forgiveness through a genuine repentance which must of course be preceded by some orgy that gives him something to repent of. Not a nice scheme! But how much more dramatic would it be to show a powerful and perverse but sincere man than the mere set he appeared to be on the screen!

Voces Populi.

WHAT strange remarks one occasionally hears made by perfect strangers, remarks that set one imagining an appropriate explanation! The other day two men were sitting next to me in a tea lounge. One said "You know she has a lot to put up with." The other replied "Oh! yes, if she tried him in all over a slow fire any jury in the world would acquit her." I have been wondering whether I have ever met "him"!

A reception was given in the Gloucester Restaurant, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion with baskets of lilies, and streamers of orange-blossom and leaves. The happy couple will depart this week for their honeymoon in Shanghai.

"FUTURE OF CHINA IN HER OWN HANDS"Greater Self-Confidence Needed.*NOTED SCHOLAR'S OPINION

"The future of China depends largely on how the Chinese value their own civilisation; on how much they can preserve; and on how much they can develop," said Dr. Kiang Kang-hu, one of China's greatest present day scholars, to a Sunday Herald representative in an exclusive interview at his residence on Friday morning.

"The trouble in China for the last 30 years is wholly due to the Chinese people having lost their own self-respect and self-confidence," said Dr. Kiang. "She has been led astray. She has attempted to copy the British and Japanese constitutions, which served those countries well, but failed the Manchu Dynasty. She tried to copy American and French Republicanism. While Republicanism served well in the United States and France it has caused much trouble in China. Then she turned to Communism. While Communism worked towards construction in Russia, it brought to China nothing but destruction."

"Now China is trying Fascism. While Fascism restored national integrity in Italy and Germany, China is reduced to humiliation without and terror within."

"In order to bring China back to a state of peace, she must restore her self-respect and self-confidence," he asserted.

Right Transfusion

"Other civilisations and cultures are healthful as well as helpful to China, just like the transfusion of blood to a sick person, but first of all that patient must have enough energy and latent force to receive the new blood, and, secondly, the new blood must be in the same as that of the patient. In merely copying others, we are destroying ourselves; we must preserve what is good in us and to take those things from other nations that are most beneficial to us."

ROMANCE FOLLOWS MARCUS SHOWChorus Girl Married To Accordion Player.*GIRL WEDS IN SHANGHAI

While to a fastidious few the sights and smells of Shanghai hold little appeal, the majority of the Marcus "non-stop" chorus cuties declared themselves thrilled with their first sight of China, when interviewed by a Sunday Herald representative on the N.Y.K. liner, Tatsuta Maru, on Friday evening.

Primed by glowing reports from residents in the northern port some added that they had expected something better in the way of scenery in Hong Kong, but the general comment as the liner steamed up the harbour denoted the troupe were not disappointed.

Romance has overtaken four members of the troupe since they left San Francisco. While en route to Tokyo on the m.v. Asama Maru, Miss Ruth Vernon, a member of the chorus, became the wife of Mr. Sechrist, an accordion player, the wedding ceremony taking place on board the ship on February 20.

On May 31, shortly before the party left Shanghai, Miss Rosemary Brady was married to Mr. Thurman.

The Marcus Show will open a short season at the Queen's Theatre with a matinee at 5.15 p.m. to-day, followed by a second performance at 9.30 p.m. sharp.

CAR STOLEN ON PEAKHired from Dodwell's For One Week.

A four-seater light brown Onk-land-tourer car, No. 2023, belonging to Miss B. Bicheno of No. 18, Macdonnell Road, was stolen from outside the Peak School between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. yesterday.

Miss Bicheno had hired the car from Dodwell and Co. for a week.

Life The Longest Race In The WorldNo Allowance For Sex And Age*"SEEK FIRST GOD'S KINGDOM"

(By the Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by the local Army chaplain.)

ONCE again the race for the Derby, "the blue riband of the English Turf"—has passed into history, another "dead cert" has come unstuck, and the bookmaking fraternity, although as usual bewailing their bad luck, have no doubt picked up a pretty useful packet.

It is an amazing thing, how year after year; that event is the great magnet of the English race. Even people who never frequent meetings are keen to know what has won. On the North-west Frontier, along the Hudson Bay, away in the Jungle and the Bush, the thoughts of Englishmen in exile, go back to the Downs of Epsom, and they see again the finest three-year-olds in the world hugging the rails at Tattenham Corner, and breasting the rise that so often has told its tale.

It is not only the race itself, but the surroundings and the motley crowd that combine to make Derby Day so essentially English. The Gypsies in their caravans, the Costers in their peris, the care-free crowds out for a day's amusement form one side of it. The more soamy side is represented by the gentlemen looking out for mugs to "find the lady," and indulge in other heavily weighted games of chance.

Here and there you see another selection of notabilities, looking very often like decayed jockeys, though sometimes they sport more immaculate clothing. If you gather around you will learn that they are the world's greatest benefactors. Their only reason for being there, is to do their listeners a good turn. You gather from their conversation that the Aga Khan, Lord Derby, and the Earl of Londale are their personal friends. In fact they drop in of an evening, and tell them the latest information straight from their horses' noses, on condition they only pass it on to their carefully selected clients.

By some process of selectivity, hitherto unknown, it appears that we who are listening, come into that category, and therefore for a sum ranging from half-a-crown down to six-pence, (according to our general appearance), he is prepared to give us the winner, on condition that we only open the paper in five minutes time. A very wise precaution, as there is usually a different mane on each.

A Free Tip
Well, I have a tip for you this morning, and it is free, gratis, and for nothing. It is not for a five-furlong sprint, or even for the Derby distance, it is for the longest

What a difference in our lives. We're always worrying, about today, to-morrow, next year, and the year after,—what we are going to do when we retire, and so on. If, instead, we would only walk in the way of His will, seeking His Kingdom, these things would lose their fear, once and for all. We have to remember that we only get our lives given to us one day at a time, one single little day, morning, afternoon and night, and for that space there is grace and strength to bear whatever that day may bring to us of good fortune or of bad.

Attempting Too Much
The trouble with so many people is just that they try and cram more into that one day more than they were ever meant to. If we drag back all the worries and cares and fears of yesterday into it, plus what we fear about to-morrow and the day after, and next year and ten years hence, how can we expect to be able to bear it?

The living experience of God's children in every age of Christian history, is that He has fulfilled that promise, "Never," said the Psalmist, "have I seen the righteous forsaken, nor their seed begging their bread." Why? simply because they have put first things first.

And if we will do the same, seeking by every means in our power to extend His Kingdom, by playing the game of life ourselves with a straight bat, throwing the weight of our influence on the side of the things that really matter; things that are honest and straight and clean and true, He will see to it for us, that the things we need in life, shall be ours.

An Interim receiving order against the Wo Hop Firm was rescinded on the application of the Official Receiver, Mr. J. J. Hayden, before His Honour the Chief Justice, at the Supreme Court yesterday morning.

Mr. F. X. d'Almada, Snr., appearing for the petitioning creditor, Lau Ping-chau, stated that the debtor firm owed his client $779.83, and that an interim receiving order had been made, the grounds of bankruptcy being a notice of the suspension of payment of debts.

Lau Ping-chau, in evidence stated that he had received the notice of suspension of payment. The managing partner of the Wo Hop Firm had told him that the firm held goods valued at $60,000, and about $60,000 debts. The liabilities were approximately $250,000, and there were doubtful debts amounting to approximately $70,000.

Mr. Hayden opposed the application, and the interim order was withdrawn.

SHARE MARKET.

Weekly Report.

Hong Kong, June 8.
Mr. G. A. Harriman's weekly share report and market review issued at noon yesterday.

An extremely quiet tendency prevailed during the week under review with trading on a very small scale. Rates in some sections registered a slight set-back, but on the other hand Cements attracted a great deal of attention and rose from $2.60 to $2.85 buyers. Hotels were very steady with transactions done at $5.90 to $5.95. China Lights continued in demand at $8.75. Ropes receded to a selling rate of $4.80. Lane, Crawfords touched $4.85 at one time but sellers predominated at the close with shares offering at $4.70. In the investment section Hong Kong Lands suffered a sharp decline and were done as low as $59. Hong Kong Trams remained firm with sales effected at $21.30. Telephones (old) were a shade easier with sellers at $25. Hong Kong Electric were also easier and could be obtained at $72.75. Wharves changed hands at $106 1/2 and Dairy Farms at $26 1/2. Sterling counters eased off slightly apparently due to the slight rise in Exchange, Hong Kong Banks having been done at $1.857 1/2 and Unions at $575/76. The market closes rather dull in all sections.

Business during the week has been done at the following prices:

Hong Kong Banks $1.857 1/2.
Unions Insurance $575/6.
Wharves $106 1/2.
Hong Kong Lands $59.
Hong Kong Trams $21.30.
Star Ferries $101.
China Lights (Old) $8.85.
China Lights (New) $8.20/8.80.
Hong Kong Electric $73.
Telephones (Old) $25.
Cements $2.75.
Dairy Farms $26 1/2.
Lane, Crawfords $4.75/4.85.

already in your hands. Your Directors recommend that the balance of $39,276.14 be appropriated as follows:—

To place to Reserve for Bad and Doubtful Debts $ 7,795.64
To place to Reserve for Stag Passages and Contingencies 20,000.00
To Carry Forward to next Account 11,478.50

"In formulating these recommendations, your Directors have been actuated by a desire to consolidate further the Company's financial position.

"The allocation to Reserve for Bad and Doubtful Debts will bring this reserve to a figure of $10,000. I would add that this should not be regarded as an indication that we anticipate any exceptional loss in this direction, but conditions are so uncertain that it is deemed only prudent to make such a provision.

"The lack of any reserve for Stag Passages and Contingencies has, in the past, made it difficult to absorb charges under this heading without creating undue disturbance in yearly Working Accounts. It will be appreciated that, without such reserve to draw on, one year may be unduly burdened with such charges while other years escape with comparatively light expenditure of this nature. With the creation of a reserve such as is recommended, it will be possible to apply a constant charge for this item from year to year, and so ensure more equitable working results.

No Dividend.
"It is a matter of regret to your Directors that they are unable to recommend payment of a Dividend. Under existing conditions, trading results are by no means unsatisfactory, but I believe it will be appreciated by shareholders that their interests are ultimately best served by the policy adopted by your Directors. I accordingly trust you will approve these recommendations.

"Your property, Exchange Building and Burrows Street—has been maintained in first-class order, and you will be gratified to know that, despite new buildings recently erected, Exchange Building continues to attract tenants, and all office accommodation is at present fully occupied.

"In its trading during the year under review, your Company has continued to maintain its reputation for supplying the highest quality merchandise at reasonable prices throughout all departments. Stocks are comprehensive and cover a wide range of competitive values.

"In August last, the Company instituted a highly efficient and expeditious delivery service, which has afforded customers the satisfaction of obtaining fresh commodities at any time between early morning and late evening. Deliveries are now effected to every part of the Colony, including outlying districts, and this convenience is much appreciated by the Company's patrons.

Two New Agencies.
"During the year, two valuable agencies were added to the already large list of reputable firms represented by the Company. These are the Rolex Watch Co., Ltd. and the Burroughs Adding Machine Co. As you are no doubt aware, the Rolex Watch is known as "The World's Best Wrist Watch"—a title merited by maintaining for many years the highest percentage of all official certificates awarded for high precision wrist watches.

"The Burroughs Adding Machines, Calculators, and Book-keeping machines are equally well-known, and, with the general trend towards mechanical accounting, it is hoped that this agency will prove a remunerative source of income. I would mention that two Bank Post-Instal Machines have already been installed in a local bank.

"As an announcement of especial interest to the ladies of the Colony, I would state that excellent arrangements have been made for deliveries of the very latest styles in Ladies' and Misses' Gowns, Hats, etc., from New York.

SMART
FORD
V8

Operates for less—

THAN ANY FORD EVER BUILT

The smartest car that Ford has ever built is the smartest buy your budget has ever seen. The new Ford V-8 is the most economical car that Ford has yet produced.

That big Ford V-8 engine, which is capable of a generous 80 miles per hour, is actually miserly when it comes to fuel. It consumes less gasoline than many engines that have less cylinders and less power.

Ford V-8 is equipped with aluminum-alloy pistons which minimize carbon formation. Tungsten steel valve seat inserts virtually let you say "good-bye forever" to valve grinding.

In addition, the Ford V-8's dependable springs — which give you free action on all four wheels — have shackles that require no lubrication. And the whole car is so reliably, so strongly built, that you will never be plagued with repair bills.

Before you buy any car at any price, drive the smart and economical Ford V-8.

Not only is the Greater MARCUS SHOW by far the largest theatrical attraction ever to cross the Pacific, but it is a Standard American Organization now playing its Twenty-seventh Consecutive Season under original Ownership Management. Immediately prior to embarking for the Far East last February the Greater MARCUS SHOW terminated a Transcontinental Tour at San Francisco's leading Legitimate Playhouse, the Columbia. Despite the Extraordinary Cost of Transporting a Company of this Magnitude in the Orient, the Tariff that will Prevail in Hong Kong will not exceed that established in San Francisco and other large American cities for this attraction.

TRAFFIC SUMMONS
WITHDRAWN.Car Moved By Chinese
Chauffeur.UNKNOWN'S THOUGHTFUL ACTION

The summons against Mr. F. Grose for parking his car in Queen's Road West, was withdrawn at the Central Police Court yesterday morning.

Mr. Horace Lo, who appeared on behalf of Mr. Grose, pleaded not guilty on Friday.

He said that Mr. Grose had parked his car in New Street, to attend a performance at the Koshing Theatre. On leaving the theatre Mr. Grose found that his car had been driven into Queen's Road. He did not know who had driven the car, but on enquiring was told that a Chinese chauffeur had moved the car.

Traffic-Inspector Nicol said yesterday morning that he was not pressing the case, and that he was satisfied that the car had been moved.

JOURNALISM IN FAR EAST

WHEN ORIENT VIED
WITH OCCIDENT.Hong Kong's Oldest Newspaper.

THE EARLY PIONEERS.

OCCIDENTAL ideas of the Far East seldom extend to a recognition that journalism — like other things — has been going on there for a very long time. writes the "Christian Science Monitor." Quite without reference to the fact that paper, ink, and the printing process were old in China while Europe was still in the dark ages, English-language journalism is no mere upstart in the East.

Full many a publisher in the United States and in Great Britain must doff his hat in deference to newspapers older than his own published in English in that other part of the world. Only recently the Ceylon Observer, of Colombo, the oldest paper in Ceylon, observed its one hundredth anniversary.

Courageous Effort.

Since 1834 this excellent newspaper has been serving its field with distinction. In an impressive 72-page centenary edition, of itself a notable history of Ceylon and its development, it publishes well-deserved messages of congratulation from prominent statesmen, journalists, and business leaders in both Occident and Orient. One must respect the labour and courage that have made such journalism possible.

It is an excellent antidote for complacency to recognize that such newspapers as the Ceylon Observer have been carrying on successfully for more than a century in a part of the world which to most stay-at-homes is considered but little developed.

Colony's Representative.

There are other English dailies in Asia that have reached a very respectable age. The Times of Ceylon, also published at Colombo, was established in 1845; the Penang Gazette, in Straits Settlement, in

For hawking without licenses, Li Lan, 48-year-old widow, Lam Tai, 28-year-old widow, and Tsang Lin, 48-year-old widow, were fined one cent each by Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning.

This fine is the lowest on record. Usually a caution is given, but this does not go against a person's record, whereas a fine is a conviction.

1833; the Rangoon Times in 1852 and the Rangoon Gazette in 1861, both of Burma; the Times of India, Bombay, in 1838; the Calcutta Exchange Gazette, a business paper, in 1818; the China Mail at Hong Kong, in 1845; and the North China Daily News, of Shanghai, in 1850. Many others were founded in the nineteenth century, while some of the newspapers printed in native languages also are more than a century old, notably the Bombay Samachar established in 1822.

INTERNATIONAL
ASSURANCEGOOD YEAR IN SPITE OF DEPRESSION

30 CENTS PER SHARE DIVIDEND

Shanghai. The annual general meeting of the International Assurance Company was held recently in the company's offices, Shanghai. Mr. F. R. Smith presided and was supported by Mr. C. V. Starr, Mr. R. Buchanan, Mr. R. Calder-Marshall, Mr. F. C. Master, Mr. E. Sigaut and Mr. A. J. Welch, directors, J. Middleton-Smith, acting secretary, and shareholders representing in all 81,941 shares.

Although the year 1933 was marked by depression affecting general trade in the Orient and elsewhere, and the insurance business was no exception, all branches of our company's operations showed favourable results, with continued conservative growth, he continued. The year 1933 was not a suitable one in which to seek a large increase in premium income and most insurance companies have reported decreases during the period. Forced growth during such a time might lead to increased loss ratios.

The following comparative figures for the fire, marine and accident accounts in 1932 and 1933 indicate the progress in those departments:

	1932	1933
Total Premiums written	$1,919,600.30	$2,160,393.01
Net Premiums	854,798.05	805,186.80
Net Losses incurred for the company's account	418,635.25	422,213.25

Fire insurance premiums for the year 1933 were $1,098,922.50, of which $743,559.23 was reinsured, leaving net premiums of $355,363.27. Net losses incurred were $120,456.08, commissions paid $68,571.31, and departmental expenses $51,301.75.

Marine premiums were $308,183.29, of which $164,197.01 was reinsured, leaving net premiums of $143,986.28. Net losses incurred were $80,655.73, commissions paid $17,872.14, and departmental expenses $21,600.18.

Accident premiums were $753,287.12, of which $357,449.97 was reinsured, leaving net premiums of $395,837.15. Net losses incurred were $212,101.44, commissions paid $119,413.02, and departmental expenses $23,223.24.

The average ratio of losses incurred to premiums earned in the three departments was 50.01 per cent.

Low Expenses. Both commissions and departmental expenses were held to low figures, being 22.99 per cent. and 10.78 per cent., respectively, of the premiums written. Unapportioned and organization expenses have been moderate for this stage of the company's development. Such low expenses are possible because General Management is paid for chiefly by commission on the net profit.

Underwriting reserves have been increased from $368,623.27 to $394,326.14.

The following is a comparison of the underwriting profits from the various accounts for 1932 and 1933:

The profit from the Fire Revenue Account in 1932 amounted to $67.86. The profit for 1933 was $67,114.23. The Marine profit for 1932 was $19,135.34. The profit in 1933 was $27,234.60.

The Accident account in 1932 yielded a profit of only $2,171.00. The net profit from the accident account in 1933 was $25,602.73.

Thus, from the three branches which can be balanced off yearly, (as distinguished from the life operations, which are more deferred), the profits for 1933 total $120,041.56 as against $21,874.17 in 1932. This result has been obtained after setting up full reserves for unexpired liability and all other contingencies.

Life Insurance

The Life Insurance department has made good progress. At this early stage of the work such progress is not reflected in yearly profits as in the case in the other departments, but rather by the accumulation of insurance in force which will be a source of profitable renewal premiums in future years, free of the acquisition cost which marks the first policy year. In other words, future profits of this department will come from the foundation now being laid.

New life insurance issued in 1933 totalled $3,396,870.00, as compared with $2,400,700.00, or $3,357,760, in 1932, and the life insurance in force, after deducting cancellations, lapses and claims, increased from $3,515,076.90 to $8,027,730.

The life insurance reserves have been increased from $27,493.83 to $63,055.09 and your Directors recommend that these reserves be further strengthened by an appropriation of $50,000 from the profit of this year. This will make our surrender values and net cost of insurance competitive with any company in the field.

The income for the year from interest and dividends was $242,592.98, or 6.8 per cent. on the company's capital. The figures for the previous year was $282,010.24. The drop in interest earnings on good securities has been general with most financial institutions holding high-class securities.

Investment Profits

Profit realized from sale of investments was $81,318.54, as compared with a loss of $1,673.43 during 1932. Included in this figure is $23,981.16 derived from the sale of the property which appeared in the 1932 balance sheet, after deducting interest on the full amount invested.

The present portfolio of investments is high grade and diversified, with earnings as good as can be obtained in the present market. The value of the company's investments increased during the year. Listed securities are carried at market prices and unlisted at cost. The net appreciation was credited directly to reserve.

The net gain from all sources during the year was $415,611.84. Of this amount $37,400.36 arose from net revaluation of investments and balances abroad at current market prices and rates of exchange, which was carried directly to the General Reserve.

The net liquidated profit from operations for the year, after providing reserves for Directors' and Auditors' fees, was $378,211.48, which, together with $22,618.14 carried forward from 1932, gives a credit balance of $400,829.62. Deduction of the General Managers' commission of $32,821.15 leaves a net balance of $368,008.47, which your Directors recommend be dealt with as follows:

To pay a dividend of $0.30 per share	$180,000.00
To transfer to Life Insurance Fund	50,000.00
To transfer to General Reserve (making a total of $500,000)	112,940.29
To carry forward	25,059.18
	$368,008.47

Board Changes

Since the last General Meeting, Mr. M. Speelman and Mr. V. Meyer have resigned from the board. Sir Shou-son Chow and Mr. E. Sigaut have joined the board and their appointment requires confirmation. In accordance with the Articles of Association, Mr. G. E. Marden, Mr. Hsu Sing-loh and Mr. Buchanan retire, and being eligible, offer themselves for re-election.

Messrs. Lowe, Bingham & Matthews retire and offer themselves for re-election as the company's auditors.

There being no questions, the following Resolutions were put to the meeting and carried unanimously.

MARCUS SHOW WANT
LOCAL GIRLSTen Or A Dozen To Tour America."COLONY CHINESE GIRLS WILL CREATE A FURORE"

The Marcus Show arrived in Hong Kong on Friday night with some 70 persons in the entourage, all of whom have their part in giving the performance of "La Vie Parée" which will inaugurate the Marcus season at the Queen's Theatre with a matinee this afternoon. If Mr. A. B. Marcus, managing director, has his way the troupe will be augmented by ten or a dozen when it departs from Hong Kong.

The showman wishes to secure several pretty Chinese girls to add to the decorative department of the extravaganza. The Marcus Show plans to return to America early in the autumn of 1935, and will then go on tour of the States and Canada with a personnel including beauties of the various countries that the company has visited on its "round-the-world" itinerary.

Mr. Marcus is glad that he waited until reaching Hong Kong before engaging the young women who will represent Cathay in the proposed "World O' Girls."

Stunning Local Girls.

"I thought that some of the Chinese girls I saw in Shanghai were stunning — and they were, but those of Hong Kong are even more so. I feel certain that they will create a furore in the United States," declared Impresario Marcus to a Sunday Herald representative.

The only requisites to securing a place with the Marcus Show are beauty of face and figure and good character. Previous experience is unnecessary.

"Show business is a commercial proposition although some naive nitwit occasionally puts forward the idea that it is an art. Being a business it must sell tickets to remain solvent. There is no more potent motivation that pretty girls. That is why personal attractiveness is a prime essential in choosing a chorus girl," continued the showman.

Close Scrutiny.

"We must also be very careful that all the members of the company are such as to maintain the high reputation of the company off the stage as well as on. This is why we scrutinize the character of applicants so closely."

Girls who join the company here will be protected by a bond guaranteeing their return to Hong Kong at the end of the 1935-6 theatrical season. Dancing and English teachers will be provided without cost and the young women will be paid a substantial salary. Mr. or Mrs. Marcus will interview young women desirous of joining the company, at performance times at the Queen's Theatre stage entrance.

Mrs. Bay Stakes on April 14, and second in the Hwang Ho handicap on May 21, on both occasions with Mr. Heard up.

With Mr. Butler up, Wakefield should be a good betting chance, while Macaroni, (Mr. Harriman) has a record of a first in the Black Rock Stakes, and three seconds.

Royal Flush's Chance

Royal Flush (Mr. Heard) should be a safe bet for the fifth race, while Racing Triumph, which I understand is to start in this, as well as the third race, should be good enough for a second place.

Mike is a game little pony, and has been placed twice this season, running third in the Kellett Handicap (Mr. Paul Botelho) and third in the Happy Valley Spring Handicap on March 3, with Mr. Pih up.

The Macao Jockey Club have announced that a winning griffin that is in "C" Class and that has not won more than $500 in stakes, is eligible to run in the fifth race. This will bring West Parade, which won under Mr. Paul Botelho in the Commonwealth Handicap over 1 1/4 miles, in which he was unbacked in the second leg of the double, at the Third Extra Meeting, and Gold Bullion which won the Kellett Handicap, with Mr. J. Pote-Hunt up, at the Second Extra Meeting, into this race.

These two ponies will bring serious competition into the field and will aid in proving a fine close finish.

Mafoo's Race

Tolschan, will probably win the Mafoo's Race, which is the sixth event of the day. The idea of a mafoo's race is not new by any means—it is a regular feature of Shanghai meetings—while many years ago they were held in Macao.

Ask should not be far away, while I suspect that Britannic Hall has not been entered for nothing.

This pony has not been heard of since 1930, when he won $900 in prize money. Rumour says that he has been entered on account of a splash of form.

Sea View, should win the Ladies' Dash, for, although starting in the first race. The possibility is that the weight may be a little too much for her. Heart's Joy, and Young Commander should help to make this a close race, and provide the ladies with the thrill of a good finish.

Sailing Times

Every facility has been made for race-goers to get to the course. The s.s. Tai Shan sails from the Hong Kong Wharf at 9.30 a.m., and leaves for Hong Kong at 6 p.m.

Another feature of the meeting is a big $2.00 sweepstake on the Fifth race, the June Meeting Handicap, and a $1.00 Cash Sweep on the First Race, the Man On Shan, Handicap.

CHINESE STUDENT ORATORS.Mandarin Contest Held At Y.M.C.A.*TING WAH COLLEGE SUCCESS

Speaking on the subject, "Chinese Students Should Pay More Attention to Natural Sciences," at the fifth annual Mandarin oratorical contest at the Chinese Y.M.C.A. Bridges Street, last evening, Mr. Chan Shye-pak, of Ying Wa College, was declared the champion speaker in Mandarin.

Mr. Chan Tung-chun from the Man Sang College, taking the same subject, won the second prize, while Mr. Hon Chi-ai, from the Chung Wah College, was placed third, speaking on "We Must Stress on Deeds Instead of On Words."

At the conclusion of the contest the prizes were distributed by Mrs. Chen, wife of Mr. William C. H. Chen, associate general secretary of the "Y." A shield, donated by Mr. Lam Chi-fung, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Chinese Y.M.C.A., was presented to the winner. The second and third contestants were given souvenirs.

The judges for the competition were Messrs. T. C. Yen, William C. H. Chen and Chen Yim. Mr. William C. H. Chen was the Chairman for the occasion.

Other entrants for the contest were: Miss Tso Shi-wai (Fairlea Girls' College), Mr. Cheng Fai (Wah Kiu College), Miss Ng Wan-yau (Man Sang Girls' College), Mr. Leung San-kiu (Hon Man College), Mr. Chan Chiu (St. Peter's College), Mr. Tam Loung-fai (Chung Kwok College), and Mr. Wong Po-chun (Ling Tung College).

"FUTURE OF CHINA IN HER OWN HANDS"

Dr. Kiang, who is now Professor of Chinese Studies at the McGill University, and Chairman of that Department, has just completed a tour to China's south-west provinces, and is expected to return to Canada in the Autumn via the United States.

Tribute To Kwangsi

Dr. Kiang said that Kwangsi is one of the most enlightened provinces in China to-day. The officials, military leaders and people live there in perfect harmony. The province is open and easy of access.

Yunnan he found to be one of China's richest provinces, but access to the province was very difficult.

Yunnan has enjoyed peace and order for three years, he said. "Transportation and constructions are on their way, though not much has yet been done."

Dr. Kiang returned to China by way of Annam and Indo-China, where he was invited to lecture in the different universities and educational institutions.

He said that there has been much improvement in Indo-China since he last visited there over 10 years ago. The depression in that country.

Socialist Party Founder
A sensation was caused last January, when Dr. Kiang was detained by the Nanking authorities in connection with the Fukien rebellion. He was the founder of the Socialist Party in China over two decades ago.

A graduate of the Peking Imperial Academy, Dr. Kiang holds the Pa Kung and Chu Jen, two high literary degrees. From 1900 to 1910 he was Third Secretary to the Ministry of Justice, and Second Secretary to the Ministry of Education in the Imperial Government. He was assistant professor of history in the Peking Imperial University from 1905 to 1910. Later he was instructor in Chinese and lecturer on Chinese culture at the University of California from 1914 to 1920.

Drafted Constitution
Returning to China, he was elected President of the Nan Fang Universities in Peking and Shanghai. He was also one of the drafters of the National Constitution of the Chinese Republic.

He is also the author of many books on various subjects, being the co-author of "Jade Mountain," a book of poetry in English. Two more of his books, "Chinese Civilization" and "On Chinese Studies," in English will be published this year by the Commercial Press.

Dr. Kiang left for Canton last night. He will lecture in the Sun Yat Sen University, the National University, Lingnan University and other institutions. He is expected to stay in Canton for a week, prior to his departure for the north, and for America.

MOTORING NOTES -

CITROEN CAR WORKS THROWN OPEN

Recently, the Slough works of Messrs. Citroen which cover about four acres, were thrown open to the public. To-day, it is claimed, the Citroen cars built there are 92 per cent. British, and the components are supplied by no fewer than 400 British firms.

A STREAMLINED VAN

A streamlined delivery van, has just been completed by a Manchester firm of body builders, says "Motor Transport." There are no wings, as such, the wheels being covered cowlings. The head lamps are recessed in front, wheel cowls and, except for two small side lamps and the driving mirror, there are no projections at all.

CARDINAL RULE OF THE ROAD.

Driving At Night.

A British judge recently commented on the cardinal maxim presented to motorists—that they must drive in such a way that when meeting an obstacle in the road at night it was possible to pull the car up within the illumination of its own lamps.

This rule, said his lordship, was for all roads, from the loneliest country lane to the lighted streets of towns and villages.

£240 CAR WITH FLUID FLYWHEEL

New Singer Model.

British designers are playing a leading part in the revolution which is gradually taking place in private motor-car construction. Singers, of Coventry and Birmingham, announce a new 11 h.p. four-cylinder model, with the following special features:

A fluid flywheel or hydraulic coupling between engine and gearbox;

Independent suspension of the front wheels by a novel arrangement of radius arms and coil-springs;

Ford Display At Chicago Fair

Residents of China who plan to attend the second year of the Century of Progress Fair at Chicago will be interested to know that the Ford Motor Company has let the general contract for the erection of the Ford exposition building in that city. Construction work has already begun and will be completed before June 1.

Fourteen hundred tons of steel will be used in the building, which will be 900 feet long and rise to 110 feet at its highest point in a huge central rotunda.

Specifications call for 700,000 square feet of fire-resistant wall board, 1,600,000 feet of lumber, 5,000 yards of concrete and 160,000 square feet of tile flooring. The entire space reserved for industrial exhibits will be skylighted.

Large quantities of chromium metal work will be used in both the interior and exterior embellishment, in line with the conservatively modernist motif of the architecture.

The Ford building, which is to be one of the largest at the 1934 A Century of Progress will be situated on an 11-acre tract with a frontage of 1100 feet on Lake Michigan. A five-acre park on the lake shore is a part of the general project.

MORRIS'S BUY BIG CAR WORKS.

New Production Centre?

Important developments are foreshadowed in the motor-car trade as a result of the purchase by Morris Motors, Ltd., of Cowley, Oxford, of the major portion of the Quinton Works Coventry, formerly owned by Messrs. Swift (of Coventry), Ltd., who went out of business three years ago.

The purchase includes nearly 50,000 square feet of modern floor space, with an extensive area of undeveloped land available.

It is understood that Messrs. Morris intend to centralise their full car production for northern and western territories here. Official confirmation of this, however, is not available.

The remainder of the Quinton works has been sold to two Coventry motor component firms.

WHAT WILL SHE DO?

What will she do? is a question almost every motorist asks when ever a car is being discussed, and to-day "about 70 m.p.h." is often the answer. Unfortunately, the majority of people requiring a 70 m.p.h. car think that one that will reach that speed will meet their needs. A car with a maximum of 70 m.p.h. should not be driven at that speed, the maximum should only be a gauge by which acceleration and cruising speeds may be judged.—"The Auto-car."

Ford Motor Profits In Britain.

A striking recovery in earnings is announced by the Ford Motor Co., of Dagenham. Trading profit for 1933 amounted to £343,070, compared with a loss of £160,250 for the previous year. No dividend is to be paid, a credit balance of £388,170 being carried forward, against a debit balance of £354,045, a year ago.

A novel method of mounting the radiator and front wings;

Free wheeling.

"Airstream" bodies are designed for the new car. The price, with standard saloon body, is £240.

DESIGN FOR DYING

Mr. Kirwan had told her that he proposed approaching Mr. Van Druten, she had advised him to refrain. "E don't back horses and 'e don't like tramps," she had said, and slammed the door.

A valuable witness, the butcher's wife, Mr. Kirwan thought as he picked his way along the dark passage to the back parlour, where a light showed under the door and where he had been told he would find the body.

The body was there all right. The limbs would have to be straightened before Mr. Kirwan could undress and fit his own garments to them. Extraordinary how calm he felt. As if he had been used to this sort of thing all his life. He looked for the new clothes destined for his own wear. There they were, neatly folded on a table by the oil lamp. On a chair alongside was a suitcase almost full of the dead man's effects, but just leaving room for the clothes in which he had been killed. Clevecott was going to get rid of that lot. It was not Mr. Kirwan's business.

Beard first—while his hand was still steady. One never knew how soon the quickness—and that thing—might get on one's nerves. Mr. Kirwan produced a pair of scissors from his pocket, knelt down and, careful to see that the cut hairs were caught in his handkerchief, began to trim Van Druten's beard, modelling it on his own. This done to his satisfaction, he wrapped the scissors, now blood-stained, inside the handkerchief with his harvest and thrust the bundle into the suitcase. Clothes next.

A more difficult job this. Though Mr. Kirwan was stark naked himself, not daring to put on the new clothes until he had cleaned himself, he began to perspire long before he had completed it. He remembered in time to extract the remainder of his money from his note-case before leaving it in the dead man's pocket.

The church clock struck the half-hour as Mr. Kirwan took up the suitcase, turned down the lamp and crept along the dark passage to the front door again.

Now began the last lap. He must run the gauntlet of the emptying public-houses. Mr. Kirwan must look like, must be, Mr. Van Druten going away hurriedly.

A shiver crept over him as the cool night air penetrated his thin summer suit. He must remember to buy an overcoat before he sailed. Damn it! Clevecott might have provided that.

Mr. Kirwan neared the Sheaf of Corn. A few noisy young men shepherded out by the landlord were arguing as to the merits of the Derby winner. Derby winner! Lord, he had forgotten the race was to be run. Not seen a paper for days. He wondered what had won it.

A youth called out: Well, I'll bet old Van Tiddley Push didn't back it, eh, guv'nor?

Mr. Kirwan stooped a little more, granted and passed on. One obstacle negotiated. Now for the Knight's Arms. Beyond that was Clevecott and comparative safety.

People passed him in twos and threes going home. He was careful to keep well in the middle of the road. He heard a woman say: "Druten's goin' out to a maternity case. Look at 'is bag," whereat her companions laughed.

Opposite the Knight's Arms he ran into a dozen men and girls in line across the road. His heart stopped for a moment. They might be too full of Suffolk ale to respect Mr. Van Druten as they did at ordinary times. They might start a rough house and discover.... But he was past the difficulty before the thought took shape. One of their number had slipped into the gutter and the line veered over to the pavement just in time.

Clevecott was sitting in his car with the engine running when Mr. Kirwan found him.

"All in order?" asked Clevecott. "Didn't forget a thing."

"Anyone recognise you as Van Druten?"

"The whole lot of them," said Mr. Kirwan light-heartedly.

No other words were spoken during the 50-mile drive to Tilbury.

A short way from the docks Clevecott drew up.

"The end of the road as far as you and I are concerned, Mr.—er—what shall we call you now?"

"Time for that; not Kirwan, anyway. The other two-fifty, please."

Clevecott handed him an envelope. "Count it if you like."

Mr. Kirwan flicked the notes over rapidly.

"They'll do," he said, "so-long."

"So-long."

As the rear light of Clevecott's car disappeared round a bend in the street Mr. Kirwan realised that he was hungry. Shop lights gleamed less than a quarter of a mile up the street. Moving towards them he stopped to buy a Late Night Final. Might as well read about this Derby now, anyway. He'd had a ticket in the Irish Sweep—in the dead man's pocket it was—and one never knew....

The headlines on the front page shouted at him:

DOWN-AND-OUT WINS £30,000.

MISSING FROM LONDON SINCE THURSDAY

POLICE SEARCH.

But Mr. Kirwan could never be Mr. Kirwan again.

MAN WHO NEVER SMILED.

Woman's Complaint Against Husband.

Kimberley.

"My husband never had a smile on his face," said Mrs. Mills Shantall, who applied for an order for the restitution of conjugal rights.

Her husband deserted her in 1932, she said. They were married in August, 1931, and he entered her father's business but did not shape well, and sometimes called her a slave driver when she requested him to do things.

Once he went on hunger strike for four days because he had to help her father in the shop.

"After this things grew worse," said Mrs. Shantall, "and he never had a smile on his face and never tried to bring a smile to my face."

MAN BRIBED TO GO TO PRISON.

Egyptian Army Officer On Grave Charge.

Alexandria.

An Egyptian army officer has been arrested on a charge of bribing his chauffeur to go to prison for him.

Some months ago when he was driving his car just outside Cairo, the officer is alleged to have knocked down and killed a native and then driven on at full speed.

The number plate of the car was found by the body of the dead man.

The officer, however, stated that his chauffeur was driving at the time of the accident.

The chauffeur was sent to prison, but now he has confessed that he was bribed by his employer to say that he was responsible for the accident.—Reuter.

BRIDGE NOTES

BIDDING OF A GRAND SLAM.

by Ely Culbertson.

Mr. Paul I. Hoxworth of Columbus, who is a member of the junior medical class of Ohio State University, writes me that in the class of which he is a member there are a number of men greatly interested in Contract Bridge who are enthusiastic followers of the Culbertson System.

In fact, they have arranged a series of matches and the competition is very keen. The prospective ministers to the physical ill of mankind are, of course, keen analysts—trained to draw accurate inferences from facts and from symptoms. One of the recent hands played in these competitions was the following:

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

North:—
S—K Q D 8
H—K
D—A K 8 3
C—A K J 9

South:—
S—A 3
H—A Q J 9 8 4 2
D—10 6
C—8 4

East:—
S—7 5 4
H—10 6 5
D—Q 7 5 4 2
C—10 5

West:—
S—J 10 6 2
H—7 3
D—J 9
C—Q 7 6 3 2

The bidding was:

South	West	North	East
1H	Pass	3C	Pass
4H	Pass	5D	Pass
6S	Pass	7H	Pass
Pass	Pass

Mr. Hoxworth asks me to comment upon the bidding, observing that there is no question that the correct bid is a Grand Slam but that he is somewhat doubtful as to whether it was reached in the most logical way. In my judgment the correct bidding of the hand is as follows:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1H	Pass	2S (1)	Pass
3H (2)	Pass	4D (3)	Pass
4H (4)	Pass	4NT (5)	Pass
6NT (6)	Pass	7NT (7)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—North's hand, containing 5 honour-tricks with the plus value of the heart King, the suit bid by his partner, is, of course, an obvious Forcing Takeout.

2—Showing rebid strength in hearts.

3—Further unfolding the distribution of the hand.

4—South has no other bid and the seven-card suit certainly justifies a second rebid.

5—Showing two Aces and the King of a bid suit. As a matter of fact, North has many surplus values.

6—The conventional response.

7—The decision to play this hand in notrump rather than hearts may, at first view, appear unreasonable. However, it is highly logical. South, after all, may not hold seven hearts, and thus, if the hand is played at hearts, a trump loser may develop.

At notrump, however, North, with the knowledge that South holds the spade Ace, has a number of plays for the Grand Slam which might not develop at a suit bid.

Obviously North's hand, containing only a singleton heart, has no ruffing values if played at a trump suit. The decision to play in notrump also safeguards the hand against any possibility of the ruff of the Opening lead.

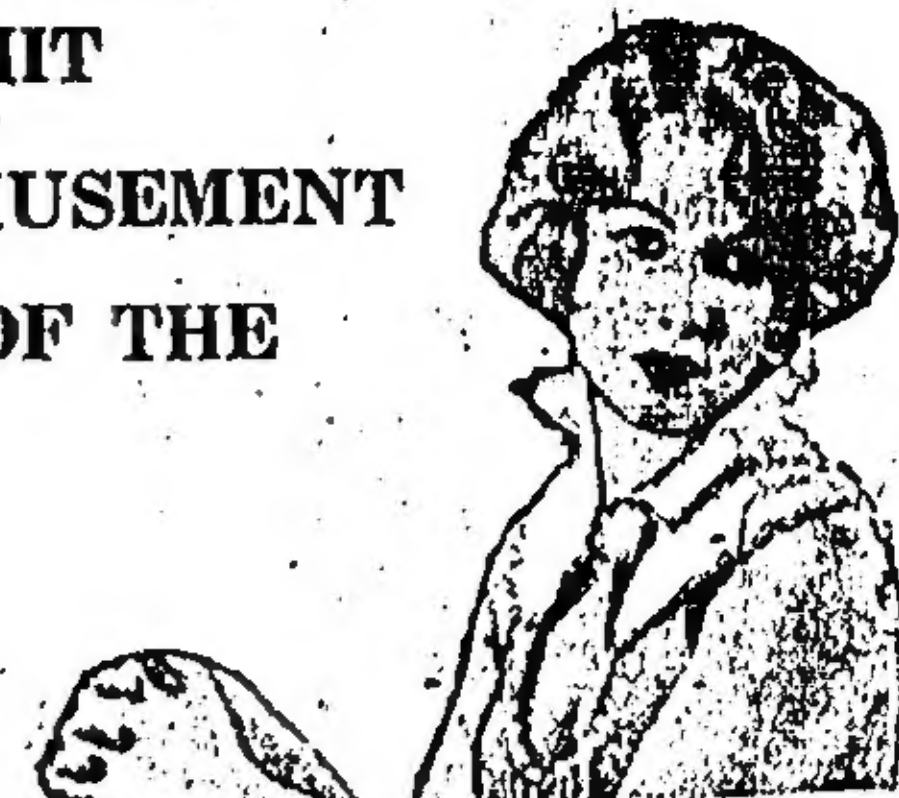

Of course, as the cards are actually distributed, it is entirely immaterial whether the hand is played in hearts or notrump; a Grand Slam, as Mr. Hoxworth pointed out, is made without a peek or a finesse. But this Grand Slam cannot be safely reached without the use of Forcing Takeouts and the Four-Five Notrump Convention.

NEWCOMER HERO

England soon met, with success when McCabe failed to get on top of a well pitched up delivery from Farnes and was well taken by Leyland at mid on. 234-6-65.

Helping to add 81 runs for the fifth wicket, McCabe had played a pleasing all-round knock which included seven boundaries. He scored his 65 out of 109.

Oldfield, the Australian stumper, dug himself in and with Chipperfield doing most of the scoring, the seventh wicket had put on 47 runs before Oldfield was snapped up in the slips by Hammond from a snick off Mitchell's slows. 281-7-20.

GRIMMETT'S RESISTANCE. Clarence Grimmett then offered unexpected resistance and he and Chipperfield were together at the luncheon interval, which was taken with the score at 355 for 7. Chipperfield was then 99 and Grimmett 29.

Within one run of the rare distinction of scoring a century on his first Test appearance, Chipperfield threw away a wonderful opportunity when he swung a little wildly at Farnes's third ball after lunch and snicked it into Ames' safe hands behind the stumps without any addition to the score. 355-8-99.

A crowd of 30,000 saw Chipperfield's downfall after a very sound innings in which he was hitting the ball right in the middle of the bat. He revealed many fine strokes, chiefly behind the wicket and through the covers. In an innings that lasted 195 minutes he hit nine boundaries, scoring his runs out of 202.

TREMENDOUS OVATION. No fewer than four players were playing in the match who had scored a century on their first Test appearance—the Nawab of Pataudi, Ponsford, Sutcliffe, and Leyland—and all gave Chipperfield a warm ovation on his return to the pavilion, the crowd rising to a man and cheering the young New South Wales player to the echo.

The end of the innings then came very shortly. Grimmett's plucky effort being ended at 374 when he was beaten by an inswinger from Geary. He had scored 39 out of 93.

O'Reilly had scored seven before he had his stumps spreadeagled by one of Farnes's expressses and the innings closed without addition—at 374, which represented 167 runs today for the remaining five wickets.

Kenneth Farnes, the young Essex bowler, secured 5 for 102 in 40.2 overs in his first Test, while the veteran George Geary had 3 for 101. The policy of dropping Nichols and Bowen, two fast bowlers, is open to criticism by the fact that Verity's one wicket cost 66 runs, and Mitchell's lone victim 62, though the Australians played Verity with every respect.

WALTERS TRAPPED. During just over an hour's batting before the tea interval, England lost C. F. Walters, the skipper, in collecting 70 runs.

Walters, who is deputising for the injured R. E. S. Wyatt, covered up to play what he thought to be a spinning delivery and was caught by the straight one, Grimmett securing an obstruction appeal. 45-1-17.

Herbert Sutcliffe, who was scoring faster than in his wont, was then joined by Wally Hammond who saw the half century hoisted after an hour's play. Tea was taken with the score at 70 for 1, Sutcliffe being 38 and Hammond 13.

Sutcliffe reached his 50, in 115 minutes, after tea with a glorious straight drive to the boundary, and then twice cut Grimmett and O'Reilly to the rails to raise the 100 after 130 minutes play.

CHIPPERFIELD AGAIN. Sutcliffe again attempted to cut Grimmett, but was brilliantly caught low down by Chipperfield in the slips. It was a magnificent catch as the ball was going away from the fieldman. 102-2-62.

The Yorkshireman had hit ten boundaries in his 62.

Hammond remained for only four runs before he was caught by McCabe, from a skier off O'Reilly, behind the bowler's wicket. It was a poor stroke. 106-4-25.

LEYLAND LEAVES. Further disaster befell England when Leyland was deceived by Grimmett's shorter pitched ball and returned an easy catch to the bowler. 114-4-6.

Thus in less than an hour's play England had lost 3 wickets for 58 runs of which Sutcliffe claimed 34.

The Nawab of Pataudi, who was 20 minutes at the crease before scoring, and Patsy Hendren then remained together until stumps were drawn for the day at 128 for 4.

Grimmett and O'Reilly had all the batsmen tied down with their good length spinners.—Reuter.

E. A. Chipperfield, 27-year-old New South Wales player, has shown great promise as an all-rounder. In his first appearance for his State he scored 84 against Queensland. He is cricket coach at Newcastle where he scored a magnificent 162 for Northern Districts against D. R. Jardine's team. As a bowler he is looked upon as the ultimate successor to Grimmett. He has scored one century on the present tour.
